A. Description of the Advisory Firm

Brighter Retirement Advisors LLC (hereinafter "Brighter Retirement") is a Limited Liability Company organized in the State of Utah. The firm was formed in March 2022 and became a registered investment adviser in August 2022. The principal owner is Peterson Consulting LLC. Devin Peterson is the Owner of Peterson Consulting LLC.

B. Types of Advisory Services

Financial Planning Services

Financial plans and financial planning may include but are not limited to: investment planning; life insurance; tax concerns; retirement planning; education planning; and debt/credit planning.

Investment planning involves working with clients to make sure their investments match their respective risk tolerance and goals. Tax concerns are addressed by working with the client to determine and compare effective tax rates for income, capital gains and other earnings or investments, then attempting to allocate the client's resources accordingly. Life insurance planning entails reviewing the life insurance and/or disability insurance needs of the client, together with any applicable dependents, spouse or other relatives, and assessing appropriate coverage for these individuals. College planning entails helping clients save for higher education, whether for the client or his/her children or other dependents, in the ideal manner to suit the client's overall financial goals and means. Financial planning to address retirement entails making sure clients are financially equipped for retirement in light of the client's anticipated income and expenses, investments, and other assets. Debt/credit planning consists of breaking down client budgets and aiding clients in decision-making as to current debt, anticipated significant expenses and potential debt, and avoiding excessive debt.

Portfolio Management Services

Brighter Retirement offers ongoing portfolio management services based on the individual goals, objectives, time horizon, and risk tolerance of each client. Brighter Retirement creates an Investment Policy Statement for each client, which outlines the client's current situation (income, tax levels, and risk tolerance levels) and then constructs a plan to aid in the selection of a portfolio that matches each client's specific situation. Portfolio management services include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Investment strategy
- Asset allocation
- Risk tolerance
- Personal investment policy
- Asset selection
- Regular portfolio monitoring

Brighter Retirement evaluates the current investments of each client with respect to their risk tolerance levels and time horizon. Brighter Retirement will request discretionary authority from clients in order to execute the initial agreed upon investment proposal as well as select/trade/rebalance positions without having to obtain permission from the client prior to each transaction. Discretionary authority is typically granted by the investment management agreement the client will sign with our firm, a power of attorney, or trading authorization forms. You may limit our discretionary authority (for example, limiting the types of securities that can be purchased or sold for your account) by providing our firm with your restrictions and guidelines in writing. These discretionary actions will remain within the risk tolerance levels that are documented in the Investment Policy Statement, and which is given to each client.

Brighter Retirement seeks to provide that investment decisions are made in accordance with the fiduciary duties owed to its accounts and without consideration of Brighter Retirement's economic, investment or other financial interests. To meet its fiduciary obligations, Brighter Retirement attempts to avoid, among other things, investment or trading practices that systematically advantage or disadvantage certain client portfolios, and accordingly, Brighter Retirement's policy is to seek fair and equitable allocation of investment opportunities/transactions among its clients to avoid favoring one client over another over time. It is Brighter Retirement's policy to allocate investment opportunities and transactions it identifies as being appropriate and prudent among its clients on a fair and equitable basis over time.

As part of Brighter Retirement's portfolio management services, we may use one or more sub-advisers to manage a portion or the client's accounts on a discretionary basis. In determining the sub-adviser that is most suitable for each client Brighter Retirement looks at client's goals, liquidity, risk tolerance and investment objective. The sub-adviser will have full legal authority to manage accounts and or assets. Brighter Retirement will appoint a sub-adviser that will be responsible for the investment and reinvestment of those assets designated by Brighter Retirement. Through their sub-advisory agreement, Brighter Retirement delegates to the sub-adviser with full authority to buy, sell, or otherwise effect investment transactions involving the assets in the client's name and for the client's account. Brighter Retirement will regularly monitor the performance of your accounts managed by the sub-adviser(s), and may hire and fire any sub-adviser without your prior approval.

Selection of Other Advisers

Brighter Retirement may direct clients to third-party money manager (TPMM) to manage all or a portion of the client's assets. Before selecting other advisers for clients, Brighter Retirement will always ensure those other advisers are properly licensed or registered as an investment adviser. Brighter Retirement then makes investments with a TPMM by referring the client to the TPMM. Brighter Retirement may also allocate among one or more private equity funds or private equity fund advisers. Brighter Retirement will continue to review the ongoing performance of the TPMM as a portion of the client's portfolio.

Brighter Retirement examines the experience, expertise, investment philosophies, and past performance of independent TPMMs in an attempt to determine if that manager has demonstrated an ability to invest over a period of time and in different economic conditions. Brighter Retirement will not perform quantitative or qualitative analysis of individual securities. Instead, we will advise a client on how to allocate their assets among various classes of securities or TPMMs. We primarily rely on investment model portfolios and strategies developed by the TPMM and their portfolio managers. We may replace/recommend replacing a TPMM if there is a significant deviation in characteristics or performance from the stated strategy and or benchmark. Clients will enter into a separate agreement with the TPMM.

Educational Courses & Content

Brighter Retirement provides educational courses and content to the general public that may include, but are not limited to: social security, Roth IRA conversion, risk management, and charitable giving strategies.

The length and complexity of a digital course, and the amount of worksheets provided, will determine the fee for each course. Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, & Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

Methods of Analysis

Brighter Retirement's methods of analysis include Fundamental analysis.

Charting Analysis- involves the gathering and processing of price and volume pattern information for a particular security sector broad index or commodity. This price and volume pattern information is analyzed. The resulting pattern in correlation data is used to detect departures from expected performance and diversification and predict future price movements and trends.

Technical Analysis- involves studying past price patterns trends and interrelationships in the financial markets to assess risk adjusted performance and predict the direction of both the overall market and specific securities.

Fundamental Analysis- involves analyzing individual companies and their industry groups such as a company's financial statements details regarding the company's product line the experience and expertise of the company's management and the outlook of the company and its industry. The resulting data is used to measure the true value of the company stock compared to the current market value.

Cyclical Analysis- A type of technical analysis that involves evaluating recurring price patterns and trends. Economic slash business cycles may not be predictable and may have many fluctuations between long term expansions and contractions.

Long-Term Purchases- securities purchase with the expectation that the value of those securities will grow over a relatively long period of time generally greater than one year.

Short-Term Purchases- securities purchased with the expectation that they will be sold within a relatively short period of time generally less than one year to take advantage of the security short term price fluctuations.

Trading- We may use frequent trading (in general selling securities within 30 days of purchasing the same securities as an investment strategy when managing a client's accounts. Frequent trading is not a fundamental part of our overall investment strategy, but we may use this strategy occasionally when we determine that it is suitable given our stated investment objectives and risk tolerance of risk. This may include buying and selling securities frequently in an effort to capture significant market gains and avoid significant losses.

Tax Considerations

Our strategies and investments may have unique and significant tax implications. However, unless we specifically agree otherwise, and in writing, tax efficiency is not our primary consideration in the management of client assets. Regardless of The account size or any other factors, we strongly recommend that the client consult with a tax professional regarding the investing of their assets.

Investment Strategies

Brighter Retirement uses long term trading.

Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

B. Material Risks Involved

Methods of Analysis

Charting Analysis- Risk: Our charting analysis may not accurately detect anomalies and predict future price movements. current prices of securities may reflect all information known about the security and day-to-day changes in market prices of securities may follow random patterns and may not be predictable with any reliable degree of accuracy.

Technical Analysis- Risk: The risk of market timing based on technical analysis is our analysis may not accurately detect anomalies or predict future price movements current prices of securities may reflect all information known about the security and day-to-day changes in the market prices of securities may follow random patterns and may not be predictable with any reliable degree of accuracy.

Fundamental Analysis- Risk: The risk of fundamental analysis is that information obtained may be incorrect and the analysis may not provide an accurate estimate of earnings which may be the basis for a stock's value. if securities prices adjust rapidly to new information utilizing fundamental analysis may not result in favorable performance.

Cyclical Analysis- Risk: the lengths of economic cycles may be difficult to predict with accuracy and therefore the risk of cyclical analysis is the difficulty in predicting economic trends and consequently the changing value of securities that would be affected by these changing trends.

Long-Term Purchases- Risk - using a long-term purchase strategy generally assumes the financial markets will go up in the long term which may not be the case. There is also the risk that the segment of the market that you are invested in or perhaps just your particular investment will go down overtime even if the overall financial markets advance. Purchasing investments long-term may create and opportunity cost - "locking up" assets that may be better utilized in the short-term and other investments.

Short-Term Purchases- Risk: using a short-term purchase strategy generally assumes that we can predict how financial markets will perform in the short term which may be very difficult and will incur a disproportionately higher amount of transaction costs compared to a long-term trading. There are many factors that can affect financial market performance in the short term (such as short-term interest rate changes cyclical earnings announcements, etc.) but may have a smaller impact over longer periods of time.

Trading- Risk: When a frequent trading policy is in effect there is a risk that investment performance within your account may be negatively affected particularly through increased brokerage and other transactional costs and taxes.

Tax Considerations

Our strategies and investments may have unique and significant tax implications. However, unless we specifically agree otherwise, and in writing, tax efficiency is not our primary consideration in the management of client assets. Regardless of the account size or any other factors, we strongly recommend that the client consult with a tax professional regarding the investing of their assets.

Investment Strategies

Long term trading is designed to capture market rates of both return and risk. Due to its nature, the long-term investment strategy can expose clients to various types of risk that will typically surface at various intervals during the time the client owns the investments. These risks include but are not limited to inflation (purchasing power) risk, interest rate risk, economic risk, market risk, and political/regulatory risk.

Selection of Other Advisers: Although Brighter Retirement will seek to select only TPMMs who will invest clients' assets with the highest level of integrity, Brighter Retirement's selection process cannot ensure that TPMMs will perform as desired and Brighter Retirement will have no control over the day-to-day operations of any of its selected money managers. Brighter Retirement would not necessarily be aware of certain activities at the underlying money manager level, including without limitation a money manager's engaging in unreported risks, investment "style drift" or even regulatory breaches or fraud.

Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

B. Material Risks Involved

Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. We do not represent or guarantee that our services or methods of analysis can or will predict future results, successfully identify market tops or bottoms, or insulate clients from losses due to market corrections or declines. We cannot offer any guarantees or promises that our client's financial goals and objectives will be met. Past performance is in no way an indication of future performance.

Other Risk Considerations

When evaluating risk, financial loss may be viewed differently by each client and may depend on many different risks, each of which may affect the probability and magnitude of any potential losses. The following risks may not be all-inclusive but should be considered carefully by a prospective client before retaining our services.

We recommend various types of securities and we do not primarily recommend one particular type of security over another since each client has different needs and different tolerance for risk. Clients should be aware that there is a material risk of loss using any investment strategy. Each type of security has its own unique set of risks associated with it and it would not be possible to list here all the specific risks of every type of investment period even within the same type of investment, risks may vary widely. However, in very general terms, the higher than anticipated return of an investment, the higher the risk of loss associated with the investment period a description of the types of securities we may recommend to our clients and some other inherent risks are provided below.

The investment types listed below (leaving aside Treasury Inflation Protected/Inflation Linked Bonds) are not guaranteed or insured by the FDIC or any other government agency.

Market Risk, also called systematic risk, is the possibility of an investor experiencing losses due to factors that affect the overall performance of the financial markets in which they are involved. This type of risk can be hedged against, but cannot be eliminated through diversification. Sources of market risk include recessions, political turmoil, changes in interest rates, natural disasters and terrorist attacks.

Stocks: There are numerous ways of measuring the risk of equity securities (also known simply as "equities" or "stock"). In very broad terms, the value of a stock depends on the financial health of the company issuing it. However, stock prices can be affected by many other factors including, but not limited to the class of stock (for example, preferred or common); the health of the market sector of the issuing company; end, the overall health of the economy. In general, larger, better established companies ("large cap") tend to be safer than smaller startup companies ("small cap") are but the mere size of an issuer is not, by itself, an indicator of the safety of the investment.

Bonds: Corporate debt securities (or "bonds") are typically safer investments than equity securities, but their risk can also vary widely based on: the financial health of the issuer; the risk that the issuer might default; When the bond is set to mature; and whether or not the bond can be "called" prior to maturity. When called, it may not be possible to replace it with a bond of equal character pain the same rate of return.

Municipal Securities: Municipal securities, while generally thought of as safe, can have significant risk associated with them including, but not limited to: the creditworthiness of the governmental entity that issued the bond; This stability of the revenue stream that is used to pay the interest to the bondholders; when the bond is due to mature; End, whether or not the bond can be "called" prior to the maturity. When a bond is called, it may not be possible to replace it with a bond of equal character pain the same amount of interest or yield to maturity.

Mutual Funds: Investing in mutual funds carries the risk of capital loss and thus you may lose money investing in mutual funds. All mutual funds have costs that lower investment returns. The funds can be of bond "fixed income" nature (lower risk) or stock "equity" nature.

Equity investment generally refers to buying shares of stocks in return for receiving a future payment of dividends and/or capital gains if the value of the stock increases. The value of equity securities may fluctuate in response to specific situations for each company, industry conditions and the general economic environments.

Fixed income investments generally pay a return on a fixed schedule, though the amount of the payments can vary. This type of investment can include corporate and government debt securities, leveraged loans, high yield, and investment grade debt and structured products, such as mortgage and other asset-backed securities, although individual bonds may be the best-known type of fixed income security. In general, the fixed income market is volatile and fixed income securities carry interest rate risk. (As interest rates rise, bond prices usually fall, and vice versa. This effect is usually more pronounced for longer-term securities.) Fixed income securities also carry inflation risk, liquidity risk, call risk, and credit and default risks for both issuers and counterparties. The risk of default on treasury inflation protected/inflation linked bonds is dependent upon the U.S. Treasury defaulting (extremely unlikely); however, they carry a potential risk of losing share price value, albeit rather minimal. Risks of investing in foreign fixed income securities also include the general risk of non-U.S. investing described below.

Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs): An ETF is an investment fund traded on stock exchanges, similar to stocks. Investing in ETFs carries the risk of capital loss (sometimes up to a 100% loss in the case of a stock holding bankruptcy). Areas of concern include the lack of transparency in products and increasing complexity, conflicts of interest and the possibility of inadequate regulatory compliance. Risks in investing in ETFs include trading risks, liquidity and shutdown risks, risks associated with a change in authorized participants and non-participation of authorized participants, risks that trading price differs from indicative net asset value (iNAV), or price fluctuation and disassociation from the index being tracked. With regard to trading risks, regular trading adds cost to your portfolio thus counteracting the low fees that one of the typical benefits of ETFs. Additionally, regular trading to beneficially "time the market" is difficult to achieve. Even paid fund managers struggle to do this every year, with the majority failing to beat the relevant indexes. With regard to liquidity and shutdown risks, not all ETFs have the same level of liquidity. Since ETFs are at least as liquid as their underlying assets, trading conditions are more accurately reflected in implied liquidity rather than the average daily volume of the ETF itself. Implied liquidity is a measure of what can potentially be traded in ETFs based on its underlying assets. ETFs are subject to market volatility and the risks of underlying securities, which may include the risks associated with investing in smaller companies, foreign securities, commodities, and fixed income investments (as applicable). Foreign securities in particular are subject to interest rate, currency exchange rate, economic, and political risks, all of which are magnified in emerging markets. ETFs that target a small universe of securities, such as a specific region or market sector, are generally subject to greater market volatility, as well as to the specific risks associated with that sector, region, or other focus. ETFs that use derivatives, leverage, or complex investment strategies are subject to additional risks. Precious Metal ETFs (e.g., Gold, Silver, or Palladium Bullion backed "electronic shares" not physical metal) specifically may be negatively impacted by several unique factors, among them (1) large sales by the official sector which own a significant portion of aggregate world holdings in gold and other precious metals, (2) a significant increase in hedging activities by producers of gold or other precious metals, (3) a significant change in the attitude of speculators and investors. The return of an index ETF is usually different from that of the index it tracks because of fees, expenses, and tracking error. An ETF may trade at a premium or discount to its net asset value (NAV) (or indicative value in the case of exchange-traded notes). The degree of liquidity can vary significantly from one ETF to another and losses may be magnified if no liquid market exists for the ETF's shares when attempting to sell them. Each ETF has a unique risk profile, detailed in its prospectus, offering circular, or similar material, which should be considered carefully when making investment decisions. Brighter Retirement will not use leverage or inverse ETFs.

Real Estate: Real estate is increasingly being used as a part of a long-term core strategy due to increased market efficiencies and increased concerns about the future long-term variability of stock and bond returns. In fact, real estate is known for its ability to serve as a portfolio diversifier and inflation hedge. However, the asset class still bears a considerable amount of market risk. Real estate has shown itself to be very cyclical, somewhat mirroring the ups and downs of the overall economy. In addition to employment and demographic changes, real estate is also influenced by changes in interest rates and the credit markets, which affect the demand and supply of capital and thus real estate values. Along with changes in market fundamentals, investors wishing to add real estate as part of their core investment portfolios need to look for property concentrations by area or by property type. Because property returns are directly affected by local markets, real estate portfolios are too heavily concentrated in one area or property type can lose their risk mitigation attributes and bear additional risk by being too influenced by local or sector market changes.

Real Estate Investment Trust: A real estate investment trust ("REIT") is a corporate entity which invests in real estate and or engages in real estate financing. A REIT reduces or eliminates corporate income taxes. REITs Can be publicly or privately held. Public REITs may be listed on public stock exchanges. REITs are required to declare 90% of their taxable income as dividends, but they actually paid dividends out of funds from operations, so cash flow has to be strong or the REIT must either dip into reserves, or borrow to pay dividends, or distribute them in stock (which causes dilution). After 2012 the IRS stopped permitting stock dividends. Most REITs must refinance or erase large balloon debts periodically. The credit markets are no longer frozen, but banks are demanding, and getting, harsher terms to re extend REIT debt. Some REITs may be forced to make secondary stock offerings to repay debt, which will lead to additional dilution of the stockholders. Fluctuations in real estate market can affect the rates value and dividends.

Annuities are retirement products for those who may have the ability to pay a premium now and want to guarantee they receive certain payments or a return on investment in the future. Annuities are contracts issued by a life insurance company designed to meet requirement or other long-term goals. An annuity is not a life insurance policy.

Private equity funds carry certain risks. Capital calls will be made on short notice, and the failure to meet capital calls can result in significant adverse consequences, including but not limited to a total loss of investment.

Non-U.S. securities present certain risks such as currency fluctuation, political and economic change, social unrest, changes in government regulation, differences in accounting and the lesser degree of accurate public information available.

Past performance is not indicative of future results. Investing in securities involves a risk of loss that you, as a client, should be prepared to bear.

B. Registration as a Futures Commission Merchant, Commodity Pool Operator, or a Commodity Trading Advisor

Neither Brighter Retirement nor its representatives are registered as or have pending applications to become either a Futures Commission Merchant, Commodity Pool Operator, or Commodity Trading Advisor or an associated person of the foregoing entities.

C. Registration Relationships Material to this Advisory Business and Possible Conflicts of Interests

Devin Ray Peterson, Mary Amelia Carbine, and David John Card are independent licensed insurance agents. This activity creates a conflict of interest since there is an incentive to recommend insurance products based on commissions or other benefits received from the insurance company, rather than on the client's needs. Additionally, the offer and sale of insurance products by supervised persons of Brighter Retirement are not made in their capacity as a fiduciary, and products are limited to only those offered by certain insurance providers. Brighter Retirement addresses this conflict of interest by requiring its supervised persons to act in the best interest of the client at all times, including when acting as an insurance agent. Brighter Retirement periodically reviews recommendations by its supervised persons to assess whether they are based on an objective evaluation of each client's risk profile and investment objectives rather than on the receipt of any commissions or other benefits. Brighter Retirement will disclose in advance how it or its supervised persons are compensated and will disclose conflicts of interest involving any advice or service provided. At no time will there be tying between business practices and/or services (a condition where a client or prospective client would be required to accept one product or service conditioned upon the selection of a second, distinctive tied product or service). No client is ever under any obligation to purchase any insurance product. Insurance products recommended by Brighter Retirement's supervised persons may also be available from other providers on more favorable terms, and clients can purchase insurance products recommended through other unaffiliated insurance agencies.

D. Selection of Other Advisers or Managers and How This Adviser is Compensated for Those Selections

Brighter Retirement may direct clients to third-party investment advisers. Clients will pay Brighter Retirement its portfolio management fee in addition to the investment strategy fee for the advisers to which it directs those clients. The fees will not exceed any limit imposed by any regulatory agency. Brighter Retirement will always act in the best interests of the client, including when determining which third-party investment adviser to recommend to clients. Brighter Retirement will ensure that all recommended advisers are exempt, licensed or notice filed in the states in which Brighter Retirement is recommending them to clients.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

A. Code of Ethics

Brighter Retirement has a written Code of Ethics that covers the following areas: Prohibited Purchases and Sales, Insider Trading, Personal Securities Transactions, Exempted Transactions, Prohibited Activities, Conflicts of Interest, Gifts and Entertainment, Confidentiality, Service on a Board of Directors, Compliance Procedures, Compliance with Laws and Regulations, Procedures and Reporting, Certification of Compliance, Reporting Violations, Compliance Officer Duties, Training and Education, Recordkeeping, Annual Review, and Sanctions. Brighter Retirement's Code of Ethics is free upon request to any client or prospective client.

B. Recommendations Involving Material Financial Interests

Brighter Retirement does not recommend that clients buy or sell any security in which a related person to Brighter Retirement or Brighter Retirement has a material financial interest.

C. Investing Personal Money in the Same Securities as Clients

From time to time, representatives of Brighter Retirement may buy or sell securities for themselves that they also recommend to clients. This may provide an opportunity for representatives of Brighter Retirement to buy or sell the same securities before or after recommending the same securities to clients resulting in representatives profiting off the recommendations they provide to clients. Such transactions may create a conflict of interest. Brighter Retirement will always document any transactions that could be construed as conflicts of interest and will never engage in trading that operates to the client's disadvantage when similar securities are being bought or sold.

D. Trading Securities At/Around the Same Time as Clients' Securities

From time to time, representatives of Brighter Retirement may buy or sell securities for themselves at or around the same time as clients. This may provide an opportunity for representatives of Brighter Retirement to buy or sell securities before or after recommending securities to clients resulting in representatives profiting off the recommendations they provide to clients. Such transactions may create a conflict of interest; however, Brighter Retirement will never engage in trading that operates to the client's disadvantage if representatives of Brighter Retirement buy or sell securities at or around the same time as clients.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

A. Factors Used to Select Custodians and/or Broker/Dealers

Custodians/broker-dealers will be recommended based on Brighter Retirement's duty to seek "best execution," which is the obligation to seek execution of securities transactions for a client on the most favorable terms for the client under the circumstances. Clients will not necessarily pay the lowest commission or commission equivalent, and Brighter Retirement may also consider the market expertise and research access provided by the broker-dealer/custodian, including but not limited to access to written research, oral communication with analysts, admittance to research conferences and other resources provided by the brokers that may aid in Brighter Retirement's research efforts. Brighter Retirement will never charge a premium or commission on transactions, beyond the actual cost imposed by the broker-dealer/custodian.

Brighter Retirement will require clients to use Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. Advisor Services Institutional, a division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. Advisor Services Member FINRA/SIPC and Schwab Institutional, a division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc.

1. Research and Other Soft-Dollar Benefits

While Brighter Retirement has no formal soft dollars program in which soft dollars are used to pay for third party services, Brighter Retirement may receive research, products, or other services from custodians and broker-dealers in connection with client securities transactions ("soft dollar benefits"). Brighter Retirement may enter into soft-dollar arrangements consistent with (and not outside of) the safe harbor contained in Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. There can be no assurance that any particular client will benefit from soft dollar research, whether or not the client's transactions paid for it, and Brighter Retirement does not seek to allocate benefits to client accounts proportionate to any soft dollar credits generated by the accounts. Brighter Retirement benefits by not having to produce or pay for the research, products or services, and Brighter Retirement will have an incentive to recommend a broker-dealer based on receiving research or services. Clients should be aware that Brighter Retirement's acceptance of soft dollar benefits may result in higher commissions charged to the client.

2. Brokerage for Client Referrals

Brighter Retirement receives no referrals from a broker-dealer or third party in exchange for using that broker-dealer or third party.

3. Clients Directing Which Broker/Dealer/Custodian to Use

Brighter Retirement will require clients to use a specific broker-dealer to execute transactions. Not all advisers require clients to use a particular broker-dealer.

B. Aggregating (Block) Trading for Multiple Client Accounts

Brighter Retirement does not aggregate or bunch the securities to be purchased or sold for multiple clients. This may result in less favorable prices, particularly for illiquid securities or during volatile market conditions.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

A. Frequency and Nature of Periodic Reviews and Who Makes Those Reviews

All client accounts for Brighter Retirement's advisory services provided on an ongoing basis are reviewed at least annually by Devin Peterson, Managing Member and Chief Compliance Officer, with regard to clients' respective investment policies and risk tolerance levels. All accounts at Brighter Retirement are assigned to this reviewer.

B. Factors That Will Trigger a Non-Periodic Review of Client Accounts

Advisor Services. As part of its fiduciary duties to clients, Brighter Retirement endeavors at all times to put the interests of its clients first. Clients should be aware, however, that the receipt of economic benefits by Brighter Retirement or its related persons in and of itself creates a conflict of interest and may indirectly influence the Brighter Retirement's choice of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc.
